Are all people who commit child sexual abuse offences sexually attracted to children?

No. It is necessary to distinguish between people who are sexually attracted to children and people who commit child sexual abuse.

There can be many reasons for offending against children, which, however, do not justify this behaviour.

It is a common misunderstanding that people with a sexual interest in children will automatically commit CSA or view CSEM on the internet.

This is not the case.
Many people who have committed child sexual offences do not have a sexual preference
for children.
